force are not only demoralized but desperate. They seem to be utterly lacking in tact, and the discipline of the subordinates amounts to nothing. Burglaries go unchecked. Pickpockets are working in churches, and a few days ago a lady relative of a man prominently connected with the police department had her purse stolen while kneeling in devotion in a church adjacent to her home. The tactics of Foster, Luchsinger and Pfau have emboldened the subordinate members of the department to make spectacles of themselves.

Yet the administration and its organs say the police and firemen to the information upon which the same of ficer, who was recently summoned by court to show why he had registered before taking out naturalization papers.

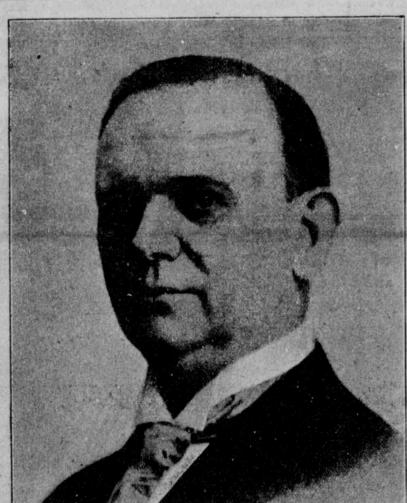

Why are so many motormen and conductors in the employment of the Louisville Railway Company for W. O. Head as against Grinstead? Because of the impudence of negro passengers on the street cars. That is the reason. Only this week the Courier-Journal told in alleged detail the story of the sale of the Norvin Green homestead, at Second street and Broadway. It is possible that some part of the Courier-Journal's story is true, but it is only a possibility. For instance it says: "Whitestone, the great English architect, who built the Galt House and other magnificent Louisville residences, constructed the Green before taking out naturalization and a few days ago a lady relative defore taking out naturalization papers.

Why are so many motormen and conductors in the employment of the Louisville Railway Company for W. O. Head as against Grinstead? Because of the impudence of negro passengers on the street cars. That is the reason. Only this week Capt. Boone Jameson told a motorman, "If we don't win this election for Grinstead? Yet the administration and its organs say the police and firemen are out of politics. That is as true as anything else that ever appears in the Post. During the week half a dozen fire Captains have been reduced and shifted to other scenes. Why? Because they refused to support Grinstead and to get others to support him they have been reduced to the ranks. That is a sample of reform. Again! The police are out in mind when you go to the polls.

Capt. Julius Luchsinger, of the Fifth district, called all his men off their feeling, but you must remember beats at 2:30 o'clock a. m. While that you are an American citizen the police were corralled in the sta-tion house the Shelby street branch You must remember, too, that the of the Public Library was wrecked police will make as many arrests as by vandals. From 1 o'clock until 5:30 o'clock in the morning Capt. Luchsinger and Patrolmen Ennis and Smyser and two negroes, Pearl Broadus and John Tyler, were distributing copies of the Louisville Evening Post that contained a copy of Marshall Bullitt's latest speech. They used a police automobile in their work, and the other police had been called in, so that none would been called in, so that none would see or suspect Luchsinger, Ennis, Smyser and their negro friends.

What do the people think of this demorilization in police and fire cir-cles? What will the Board of Fire Underwriters do to Louisville in the cles? What will the Board of Fire Underwriters do to Louisville in the way of increasing insurance rates? How can Mayor Grinstead help himself in event of his eligibility from reappointing men like these? Mr. Grinstead is a courteous gentleman, a good grocer and a man of good character. When it comes to his political record it is a record of machine politics and nothing else. He is the type of man the machine has picked out, groomed and put forward to use as a medium in earrying out its bidding. In politics he has always followed the lines of least resistance, simply getting in the swim and drifting with the current. He has never breathed any political atmosphere except the atmosphere of machine politics. He is part of the machine, and he embodies the machine idea. His mind does not operate along any other lines. It would never do to accuse Mr. Grinstead of being an ingrate. but he would be one of the biggest ingrates that ever lived if he did not, in the event of his election, take orders from the Louisville Post and reappoint Foster, Pfau and Luchsinger.

Foster was intoxicated and wandering through the corridors of the Roarg of Public Safety, on Friday of last week.

laughed when they read that story, and wandered what inexcusable break the Courier-Journal would make next.

Henry Whitestone was born at Ennis, County Clare, Ireland. He was intensely an Irish Nationalist in feeling. He built the Galt House, the Green house, the Henry New-comb house, now occupied by the Louisville Gas Company.

One night some years ago there was an English banquet in Louis-ville. The late Dr. E. R. Palmer toasted Mr. Whitestone as an Eng-lishman. The late Patrick Bannon, who was then prominent in local affairs, called Dr. Palmer to task. Next day Mr. Palmer called on Mr. Whitestone to ask if he were not an Englishman.

"No! I am an Irishman! Irish to the backbone and my ancestors be fore me as far as I can trace." That settled it with Dr. Palmer. Possibly the Courier-Journal has forgotten it, but John J. Slattery, President of the Todd-Donigan Iron Company; Charles White, who superintended the carpenter work at the Galt House, and Barney Campbell, Sr., who superintended many jobs of plastering for Mr. Whitestone, have not forgotten it. The Irish ard a little touchy on such lapses of memory.

COUNTY BOARD

George J. Butler, State President; P. J. Welsh, County President; John H. Hennessy, Thomas Keenan, Jr. and D. J. Coleman, who constituted a committee to draft resolutions on death of Bishop McCloskey, made the following report:

"Whereas, It has pleased Divine performance of the onerous and laborious duties of his high office;

ounty, as practical Catholies do hereby express our deepest regret at the great loss sustained by the Catholics of this diocese and the community at large. Bishop Mc-Closkey by his exemplary life and rare executive ability has endeared himself to men of all creeds and nationalities, and emulated in a high degree the shining example of the great and pious men who had pre-ceded him as Bishop of Louisville. May his soul rest in peace."

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

Lawrence Worland, of the Sut Lawrence Worland, of the Sut-cliffe Company, met with a distress-ing accident on Friday night of last week. During the windstorm he attempted to close a window. The glass broke and a particle entered one of his eyes, destroying the sight. At first it was feared that the other eye had also been impaired, but after the injured member had been removed the sight of the other eye was restored. There are few young men in Louisville more popular than Mr. Worland, and his friends sym-pathize with him in his misfortune.

Wherever he has spoken thousands of dollars have been pledged to help the Irish cause along, and when Mr. O'Connor returns to London he will be more added to the collection of the c carry material as well as moral aid to Mr. Redmond and his cohorts. Last Friday evening Mr. O'Connor was tendered a reception at the Hoffman House by the Irish-Ameri-cans of New York. His first formal address was made in Tremont Tem-ple at Boston on Monday night. That vast edifice overflowed with enthusiastic Irish-Americans, and at the conclusion of Mr. O'Connor's Xaverian Brothers, the Victor Newcomb house on Fourth street, south of Oak, and other public and private homes. He built no cheap jobs.

Tomorrow night he will address a mass meeting at the Lyric Theater, New York City. Next Tuesday he will speak in Chicago and will close his tour with addresses in Philadelphia on Thursday and Friday even-

> While Mr. O'Connor is a versatile speaker, all of his addresses have had the same import, the necessity for the Irish in America to aid the Irish members of Parliament in the present crisis. In his addresses Mr. O'Connor explains that members of the British Parliament serve without pay from the Government, More than three-fourths of the eighty-one members of the Irish party are without means, or rather have given up their ordinary meens of liveli-hood to fight the battles of their ountrymen in London. All are able, intelligent men. They are giving their best years to fight that Ireland may become a nation once again. These patriots must be supported. They have families to sup-port, and it is a duty of every son of Erin to aid them materially and

Mr. O'Connor has not only been an evewitness, but a partaker of the recent strenuous times in the House of Commons and knows whereof he speaks. In his address in Boston he

"I return to the conviction which I have steadily held except for a few days, when the whole tide seemed going one way, that the probability still points to the acceptance of the budget by the House of Lords. Already I believe I see signs of blue funk in these exalted circles; already you hear less talk of the right of the Lords to reject the budget, or if the right be claimed, there is a strong word of warning or of doubt as to the wis-dom of exercising the right. The danger, I fear, is different. It is that the House of Lords will pass the budget; that the Government will then be satisfied, and will make the attempt to live through another year or two of office.

"This is the reason of the tone which Mr. Redmond has taken up during his recent successful tour of speech-making in the English cities. admirable zeal and judgment in the He has declared his strong opinion performance of the onerous and that the Government will be ill-advised if they do not have an early general election, whether the bud-"Resolved, That we, the committee of the County Board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Jefferson county, as practical Catholics do to force the Government to a dis-

> "It is needless to say where the Irish party stands in this contro-versy. One of the curiosities of the present struggle is the way in which Ireland suddenly has been remembered by the English politicians, especially of the Unionist side. Ireland has a knack of bobbing in this way when everybody has agreed to forget it. Redmond's manifesto to the Irish people of America and the friends of Ireland in all races has acted for the monent as the necessary reminder of obstacle to home rule is a fact so palpable that its restatement ought not to be regarded as anything ex- captive.

"But Redmond's message has been received with a howl partly of de-light and partly of apprehension by the Unionist newspapers throughout England. All Unionists are solemnly adjured to pay attention to the statement; are appealed to in every tone to rally round the House of Lords as the one bulwark of the Lords as the one bulwark of the empire against Irish treason, and empire against Irish treason, and so on. What is perhaps more remarkable and certainly more satisfactory is that the Liberal party leaders have taken the cue given by Redmond quite as readily. Within a few hours of its appearance Winston Churchill, making a speech at the National Liberal Club, the head quarters of militant Liberalism went out of his way to call for the bectowal on Ireland.

RABBI'S ADVICE.

Tells Christians To Mind Strictly to Their Own Affairs.

Christian attempts at evangelism among the Jews were severely criticized last Saturday in Chicago by Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber. In his address he mentioned the recent inoropration of the Chicago Gospel Mission to the Jews, the avowed purpose of which is to convert Heprews on a larger scale than ever before attempted. His point seems to be well taken. He said in part: "It would redound much more to the glory of the church if it first would convert its own unchristian Christians to Christianity. The Jew is by no means perfect in morality but certainly statistics show that proportionately he has fewer criminals than has Christianity. greatly to be regretted that the principal of one of our public schools is one of the incorporators of the Chicago Gospel Mission to the Jews. It is just barely possible that a public school teacher who is eager for the soul of the Jew will allow that bias to influence him in his attitude toward the children of his school.

"The Jew has all he can attend to if he will convert his own people to Judaism, and the Christian has all that he can attend to if he will convert his own people to Christianity. Increfore we say to the Christian, convert your own and let Jews alone."
